

SOLVING A MYSTERY

Colin: Come on, guys. Let's find out what that man was burying outside.

Bill: What man?

Colin: We saw a man digging a hole outside. I'm sure he was burying something.

Sean: Let's go, Bill. We'll pretend we are detectives and solve this mystery.

Bill: No, I'll pass on this one. You two go ahead.

(outside)

Sean: You know, maybe Bill was right. Maybe this isn't such a good idea. I have a bad feeling about this.

Colin: Oh, stop complaining, Sean. Let's start digging over here by the wall. I think that's where that man was digging.

(a few minutes later)

Colin: What's wrong?

Sean: There's water coming out everywhere. I think I've cracked a pipe. Quick, do something.

Colin: What a mess!

Sean: Hurry. I can hear somebody coming.

Man: Hey, what are you two doing?

Colin: We're digging a hole.

Man: I can see that. What are you looking for?

Sean: We wanted to find out what you were burying here.

Man: Well, Mr. Holmes and Dr. Watson, I wasn't burying anything. I was looking for that leaky pipe which you seem to have found.

Colin: Leaky pipe?

Man: Yes. I'm the plumber. Your mom called me. Now would one of you mind handing me that wrench over there? Let's see if we can fix this.

Sean: Colin, please don't tell Bill about this. He'll never let us live it down.
